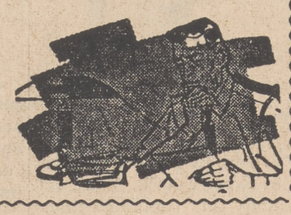
It Is Back to School Time Again

The DIMMER VIEW

by Max Goodwin



In Search of Truth

Truth is a powerful tool. A good newsman views truth as he does the air he breathes. Without it he is lost. Milford Chipp, a sturdy newsman who is news director of the Union-Tribune Publishing Co. obviously thinks so too because he arose to the defense of that valuable commodity recently.

When the editors of MAGAZINE SAN DIEGO, a slick-paper publication which views the mores of local society, commented on the shortcomings and longgoings of the SAN DIEGO UNION and the EVENING TRIBUNE recently, they should have considered Chipp a little more carefully. And certainly, they should have been a little more careful of their "facts."

Chipp's response to MAGAZINE SAN DIEGO appeared in that publication as Chipp had demanded. In it he separated fiction from fact — flesh from the bone, as it were. There was really no choice. With all the egg on the face, the editors felt, we suppose, that the cheapest way out was to publish Chipp's document.

Here is his putting-the-record-straight piece. It's a dandy:

Hypocrisy is the dominant characteristic of your article, attacking the UNION-TRIBUNE. You indict the two newspapers, particularly the UNION, for inadequate and inferential reporting, suppression of the news, bias and a general unwillingness to tell the news fairly. These grave charges apply precisely to your own presentation on the two newspapers.

Let me give you just a few examples.

You tell your readers that the award of a motion picture Oscar to the film, "Midnight Cowboy" came as a surprise to those who relied upon the UNION and TRIBUNE for the film news.

When "Midnight Cowboy" was mentioned as an Oscar candidate, both newspapers reported the fact. When it was nominated for an Oscar, they reported the fact. When the film received popularity votes in their own film contest, that fact was reported too. The reality is, their readers were kept abreast of the news at every stage.

So, you were wrong.

It is indeed true that the two newspapers — in company with numerous others across the country — have declined to accept advertising on films rated "X" by the Motion Picture Association of America. Remember, that rating applies to content only; not to artistic ability.

Our action was responsive to our own advertising standards. I am sure there are advertisements appearing in magazines across the land today which you, yourself, would not accept because of your advertising standards. And you would defend your right to refuse them. The UNION and TRIBUNE have done no differently.

Turning to another area you affront the common sense of your readership in telling them that because two of our employees went to work for the Nixon Administration, we had subsequent reason to expect some sort of special consideration from the government.

In doing this, you cast an inferential pall over the S.D. UNION as being a political captive of the Nixon administration. But then you say our "arch-conservative heart" has been broken by the Administration's welfare program.

You cannot have it both ways. You cannot condemn us on the one hand for being prostitutes of a political administration and then find fault with us for standing up for what we believe, even if it is precisely contrary to the Administration's position.

The fact is, we believe in welfare for those who cannot help themselves, and we deplore the idea of a guaranteed minimum wage. We have said so, and have been honest and straightforward in doing so, even though it is directly contrary to the Administration position.

In speaking of Representative Lionel Van Deerlin, you say that he has suffered "a decade of near shut-out in the Copley news pages."

You have to know better. The fact is, Van Deerlin has been quoted in both newspapers on every subject of major debate. Articles referring to him in the past year and a half aggregate 787 column inches. He was actually endorsed in his campaign for reelection by the Tribune on October 28, 1968.

Your treatment of NEWSWEEK'S article on The S.D. UNION is a high point of hypocrisy. You set the stage by characterizing the NEWSWEEK effort as an "important piece" coming from "a highly respected magazine." But your knowledge that it was of low quality seems plain, since you eliminated some of its errors before you reprinted it.

But other errors still remain, and the article — both in its original form and as you reprinted it — was an ill-conceived attack; grossly inaccurate; by no means an "important piece."

We wrote NEWSWEEK a letter pointing out some of the more glaring defects in their article.

Here is what we said.

NEWSWEEK, just as the S.D. UNION, has a right to its opinions — particularly when so identified — but has no license to purvey as fact that which is not.

In your January 5 Media piece on the S.D. UNION: you state the Copley chain "top echelon consists mostly of ex-Navy brass." Of the five man Executive Committee none has a profession military background. Of the 23 corporate officers only one is a former professional Naval officer; one a former professional Marine.

You speak of the "26 paper Copley chain" in one place and later of the "fourteen dailies," "eight weeklies" and a bi-monthly." Actually neither figure is correct. There are 29 Copley newspapers. None is bi-monthly.

You state that the UNION ignores "underground Catholic Masses . . . though the Bishop of San Diego has approved of them." He has not. He knows of none.

You say that San Diego is 25% Mexican-American. The 1960 census states 6.6%; the 1969 estimate is 10.3%.

You say that "the paper shuns Black Panther activity at home but devotes lengthly coverage to Panther violence in Chicago and Los Angeles." Local coverage of Black Panther activity has exceeded national coverage by 25%.

You say that the UNION "columnists run a miniscule range of opinion." The Union utilizes a broad spectrum of 23 columnists.

You describe "El" Casa del Zorro as "Copley's palatial flag-festooned home." La Casa del Zorro is a small desert hotel.

You referred to Mr. Copley's "gymnasium." He has none.

You say that in the past five years the Union's circulation has risen only 9%. In the past five years, the popula-

New Courses Offered At Grossmont High Schools And Grossmont College

In the Grossmont High School District, a variety of new courses will be available to students this year. One course of interest to many students is a class in law enforcement as a vocational career.

The program will be located at the Grossmont High School campus but is available to 12th grade boys and girls from all District High Schools.

Students will meet in a new portable facility which has been specially designed for this program. According to Jack Cavanagh, District director of vocational education, "The facility may be set up so that students may simulate court room, accident, or crime scenes. We hope also to set up a laboratory in the facility in the future."

"The new law enforcement course will use an interdisciplinary approach by combining English, social science, and physical education with a law enforcement curriculum to provide a total educational experience for high school seniors who wish to become involved in this field," said Cavanagh.

"The course will be taught by a team of teachers, each a specialist in his particular field. Sgt. George Dowdy, a retired highway patrol officer, is the law enforcement specialist. Other members of the teaching team are Michael Farrar, English, and James Hatcher, social science," according to Cavanagh.

Last year Dowdy was on active duty with the California Highway Patrol to update his experience and develop a broad view of law enforcement activities in the San Diego county area.

According to Cavanagh, the personnel needs in the area of law enforcement are "gigantic" and there are many opportunities for graduates of this program.

Graduates of the law enforcement course may continue their training in one of several area community colleges, San Diego State College, or apply for employment at any law enforcement agency.

At Grossmont College, in order to accommodate an anticipated record enrollment in electronics courses, the school will open additional classes in Basic Electronics and DC Circuit Analysis.

Both classes will meet in the evening for the benefit of those who are employed during regular school hours.

Introduction to Basic Electronics, in addition to meeting each Tuesday evening from 6:30 to 8:30, will also meet on Saturday mornings from 8:30 to 11:30. This is a basic course for the beginning student without any previous experience in electronics.

The course covers the necessary information for introductory education in the principles of electronics commencing with the atom, and progressing to simple AC and DC circuits as well as the every day use of electronics in todays technical society.

DC Circuit Analysis will meet each Monday and Wednesday evening from 6:30 to 9:30 and will cover electronics, electrical sources and units, compound DC circuit analysis, DC measurements and RC timing circuits.

Elementary Schools, Junior Highs To See Changes

It's that time of year again when mtorists in the Spring Valley-Lemon Grove area will have to keep a sharp eye out for youngsters, as the schools open Monday.

Some 4,150 students, slightly more than last year, will be back in school in Lemon Grove, and the La Mesa Spring Valley District expects 15,000 youngsters in school Monday.

The 1970-71 school year will show changes in programs in Lemon Grove schools, as new and different classes are offered, schedules are changed around, and new lunch programs come into effect.

The Lemon Grove School District, which has been a member of the National School Lunch Program, which enables the district to get cash subsidies and surplus food for school lunches, will vote Monday night to see if it will continue with the program.

According to Byron Netzley, superintendent of the district, the program will this year call for free and discount lunches to needy children. The district plans to circulate letters to parents in the district, in order to give every family a chance to see if they qualify for the program, if the measure is passed.

Another change this year will see staggered schedules at some of the elementary schools. The schedules will call for some students to report for school an hour early, and others to stay for an extra hour, giving teachers a chance to teach smaller groups of students at certain times.

At Lemon Grove Junior High, a variety of electives will be offered this year, including typing, chorus, drama and public speaking, and speed reading.

Typing has never before been offered at the school, and it is expected that many students will want to take the course. Churcus, which has been offered in the past as an extracurricular activity, will be a regular class this year, and will be for credit.

Students at the school will be required to take five "solid" classes, or required courses, and two electives.

According to Byron Netzley, there has been a slight decrease in kindergarten enrollment, despite the fact that the district has about 200 more families than last year.

Netzley said that this could be due to the fact that the community is maturing, and fewer babies are being born.

Registration is still open tomorrow, which will be the last day. Only new students to the district are required to register, and they must bring with them proof of age, as well as proof of vaccination against Ruebella and Polio.

In the La Mesa-Spring Valley district, there will be less of a change in programs, with the exception of La Presa Junior High, where classroom design will allow "team teaching."

At the newly-constructed school, classrooms are built in groups of four, with portable panels dividing them.

The "team teaching" technique will enable teachers to remove the panels and combine classrooms. In this way, students will be able to relate the knowledge they have obtained in one class to that of another class more easily.

The La Mesa-Spring Valley Board has adopted the National School Lunch Program already, and students of needy families will be able to get free or discount lunches.

There are presentuy seventeen elementary and four junior high schools operating within the La Mesa-Spring Valley School District. A new elementary school is in the planning stages and will be constructed on Conrad street in Spring Valley.

Ten-Acre Public Park Project Likely For Spring Valley

Plans are afoot to bring a 10-acre park to the residents of Spring Valley.

County owned property will be used to develop it.

The park, if developed, will be on Jamacha blvd. about 1,000 yards east of Sweetwater rd. on the site of the no-longer-used sewage pumping plant.

There will be no acquisition cost, says William Fitzpatrick, president of the S.V. Chamber of Commerce. Fitzpatrick is Spring Valley's Postmaster. The only cost might be maintenance and recreational programs. A Park and Recreation District now exists in Spring Valley. The District pays the La Mesa Park and Recreation Department for operating its summer program.

The sewage pumping station on which the park would be established was used only a few years. It quickly outgrew its capacity and the Spring Valley system hooked into San Diego's Metro.

Fitzpatrick said this week that "letters of intent" will be prepared to the County Board of Supervisors requesting use of the land and for a feasibility study. The letters will also assure the Board of Supervisors that the community is behind the project, Fitzpatrick said.

Fitzpatrick, in a meeting with Verne Torres, president of the S.V. Park and Recreation Board under which the present recreation district operates, envision local contractors aiding in developing the park by contributing the use of graders and dozers.

The property is now used for the dog pound which will soon be moved to larger quarters, and for an equipment yard for the county.

Harry Scheidle, district supervisor, met with Fitzpatrick and a local group in July. Scheidle told Fitzpatrick later that a preliminary study showed a park on the county property to be feasible.

Under a suggested proposal, 10 acres would be leased to the park district. Another five acres would be used for a group of small shops along a mall. An ice cream shop, a putting green, craft and hobby item shops and other private enterprise shops would be encouraged. The county will construct the mall buildings and recover the cost through the lease arrangement.

Fitzpatrick believes the new park, if approved by local residents, could be in operation by spring — if citizens acted right away.

The matter will be considered in depth at noon today when the S.V. Chamber board convenes at the Ox Box Inn for its regular meeting. If approved there, it will be the subject of a Chamber general meeting in October.

Workers will be needed right away to acquire letters from local citizens. Workers will also be needed for helping to plan the layout of the park. Those who want to aid should call Fitzpatrick at the Post Office at 466-3251.

There should be little difficulty in putting the project together — if Spring Valley citizens want it— since the Sanitation District Board is also the Board of Supervisors, and the Park and Recreation Department works directly under the Supervisors. If the Board approves the park plan, it is an almost certainty that the rest of the pieces will immediately fall into place.

Supervisor Scheidle appeared enthusiastic about the project when he met with the group in Spring Valley, Fitzpatrick said. All it needs is the enthusiastic support of citizens, he said.

First Step Taken By Planners

The first step of formal organization was taken Thursday when the Lemon Grove Community Planning Association executive committee approved boundaries, by-laws, and a work program.

The material will be presented at a full membership meeting called for October 13 at 7:30 p.m. at the Lemon Grove Junior High school auditorium.

If it is approved, it will be presented to the County Board of Supervisors. Supervisors will approve the program or alter it and give formal life to the L.G. Community Planning Association at the same time.

This will be done before the end of the year, it is believed.

At the October 13 meeting the by-laws will be presented by the Association's president, attorney James Dorman. Al Woods will present the boundaries and Ben Ela the work program. Following the organizational work which is all but done, the work program will include base mapping and production of a topographical model; study of existing conditions; a land use inventory; a study of traffic and circulation; study of local utilities and other community operations. Eventually a recommendation of a community plan will evolve.

Learn Spanish the Easy Way

Hardison's Telespanish

By JAMES HARDISON

Fall Spanish classes for adults are starting. This year there are three different one-night-a-week classes. The first class will begin on Monday, September 14, at 6:30 p.m. in room 111 of the Clairemont Adult School, 4140 Ute dr.

A second class will start on Tuesday, September 15, at 6:30 p.m., in room 221 of the Hoover Adult Center, 4474 El Cajn blvd. And the third one-night-a-week class will be held in room 35, Pacific Beach Center, 4654 Ingraham st., beginning September 17, at 6:30 p.m.

A special invitation is extended to our readers. Registration may be completed by calling either of the three schools or attending the first meeting. All three classes are designed for beginners.

If you want to learn Spanish words or phrases that will help you in your everyday activities of business, social, domestic, and travel situations, either one of these classes will be of great interest to you.

You need no previous experience, only the desire to learn. We begin by learning basic sounds such as "ah" represented by the letter "a". Then we form basic words that use the "ah" sound. Some of these are seen in "cama, casa, bamba, llama" which are pronounced respectively "KAH-mah, KAH-sah, BAHM-bah, YAH-mah." Then we learn their respective meanings — "bed, house, bamba, call."

What does it cost? Only your time — three hours per week. This year, now, is the time to come to the aid of yourself and learn Spanish. The following phrases are presented for your learning pleasure until we see you in class. You may wish to practice these with the aid of the recorded voice that says them for you when you dial 276-2762.

Say "Baila usted la bam-bah?" (BAH-ee-lah oo-STEHD lah BAHM-bah)
for "Do you dance the bamba?"

Say "No bailo." (noh BAH-ee-loh)
for "I don't dance."

Say "No me llama." (noh meh YAH-mah)
for "Don't call me."

Say "Es su cama?" (ehs soo KAH-mah)
for "Is it your bed?"

Say "La gusta la casa?" (lah GOOS-tah lah KAH-sah)
for "Do you like the house?"

Say "Adonde va usted?" (ah-DHON-deh vah oo-STEHD) for "Where are you going?"

Say "Voy a la clase." (VOH-ee ah lah KLAH-seh)
for "I am going to the class."

Drug Education Research Set By Public Health

The effectiveness of local drug education and prevention programs will be measured in a unique research study underway by the Department of Psychiatry, UCSD School of Medicine, for the San Diego County Department of Public Health.

Under a recent agreement, the County has designated $10,000 for the study into the efficacy of its various drug programs. Matching funds will come from UCSD and a National Institute of Mental Health research grant.

Threefold aim of the study, according to Dr. Arnold J. Mandell, chairman of the Department of Psychiatry, is to indicate the pattern of drug use in the County, begin to identify some of the characteristics of the drug abuser among teenagers, and to explore patterns of drug use in relations to a number of psychosocial variables in various San Diego County subcultures.

The survey of randomly chosen high school age students is being made in five San Diego areas, but on an individual basis and not through the schools. The subjects are "normal kids," Dr. Mandell said, and names are not collected so the inventory is anonymous.

Let no one imagine that it is a strained and unnatural thing for one to pray. The contrary is much closer to the fact. It is for more unnatural for one not to pray. Prayer is one of the most natural of human instincts. Prayer is man's response to the divine will.

Johnny Winter To Make Area Debut Tomorrow

By Lynn Jones

Winter had been playing in Houston for many years as a performer with both black and white bands in nightclubs and as a session guitarist for various Texas recording studios. His specialty was accurately imitating everyone from Buddy Holly and Jimmy Reed to Fats Domino and Jerry Lee Lewis.

Columbia Records found him and decided to make a six figure recording contract out of Winter. His records now include three Columbia albums called "The Progressive Blues Experiment," "Johnny Winter," and 'Johnny Winter And."

Winter will be preceded on the Friday night bill by Poco, a country-rock band which includes two former members of the Buffalo Springfield and has played here frequently before.

All seats are reserved. They are $6, $5, $4, and $3. Get them at the Metro Ticket Agency, Highlander Men's Stores, U.C. San Diego Box Office, and the Civic Theatre Box Office. For more information call 236-6510.

UCSD To Be Site Of Birth Defects Research

Research in the detection of hereditary birth defects early in pregnancy will be developed at the University of California, San Diego, under a new grant from The National Foundation-March of Dimes.

The $60,000 grant for one year was announced by University officials and Robert Swisher, chairman of the San Diego County Chapter of the March of Dimes.

Dr. William L. Nyhan, chairman of the department of pediatrics, will head a team to undertake wide-ranging studies of hereditary diseases with emphasis on diagnosis before birth.

Prenatal diagnosis is now possible in an increasing number of genetic disorders through amniocentesis and cell culture. These techniques enable physicians to withdraw, by needle through the maternal abdomen, a sample of amniotic fluid and fetal cells as early as the 12th week of pregnancy, and analyze them for biochemical and chromosomal signs of inherited defects.

With these methods, most chromosome defects and thirty or more inborn metabolic errors can be diagnosed in the fetus. On the basis of their findings, physicians can tell parents whether the unborn child is or is not affected by a specific hereditary condition.

Dr. Nyhan and his co-workers have established a genetic disease clinic and genetic counseling center which serves not only the San Diego area but deals with cases referred to them from all over the United States.

Georgia's Chatham County School Board has ruled girl students "must wear apparel which gives the appearance of dresses."

Grossmont Board Fills Vacancies At Special Meeting Last Week

The Governing Board of the Grossmont Community College District at a special meeting last week hired a Dean of Community Services and discussed ground rules for filling the vacancy created when Erv F. Metzgar moved up from vice president for Instructional Services to president of Grossmont College.

Selected to fill the new position of Dean of Community Services was Dr. Eugene A. Farrar, 52, presently Assistant Dean of Instruction and Director of Community Education at the College of Marin, Kentfield, California. The new position was created as a result of recommendations made by accreditation teams in April 1966 and November 1969.

The most recent accreditation report reiterated the recommendation that the position of Dean of Community Services be created and filled as soon as practical. Last night's action by the Governing Board implements this recommendation.

Dr. Farrar's community college experience includes 20 years as an instructor and administrator in California community colleges. In addition to his educational experience, he has served as a management consultant, specializing in training programs, to numerous public organizations and private firms in Southern California.

Dr. Farrar received his bachelor of arts degree from California State College at Los Angeles, his master of arts degree from the Claremont Graduate School and his doctor of education degree from the University of Southern California. He is a member of Phi Delta Kappa, Ephebian Scholastic Society, California Teachers Association, National Education Association, National Association of Adult Education Administrators and the National Council on Community Services for Community Colleges.

Dr. Farrar is former president of the Southwest Law Association and president of the Marin Kiwanis Club. Other community associations include participation in the Marin Community Workshop, Volunteer Bureau of Marin and the Mental Health Association. He presently resides in the San Francisco Bay area with his wife Agnes and is expected to join the Grossmont College staff about October 1.

Southwestern Plans No-Grade Band Course

The Southwestern College Music Department is offering a Community Band class which is open to anyone with any previous band or orchestra experience.

"What we are looking for, are people who perhaps played in a high school band, or learned an instrument as a youngster, and would like to play again as a hobby," explained James Merrill, Music Department chairman.

He said the class will be ungraded, and community oriented. Anyone 18 years of age or older may enroll by attending the class, which will meet on Wednesday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m. commencing on September 16. The College will furnish large band instruments and percussion instruments.

"We have no set concert appearances, but hopefully would present at least one concert each semester," Merrill continued, "Our main purpose is to provide residents of our district an opportunity to get out that old horn and relieve some the musical experiences they remember from high school or college."

Rehearsals will be directed by Merrill and Richard Southwestern College since 1962, and prior to that served as Band Director at Chula Vista High School since 1953.

Robinette is in his second year at the College, and before joining the Southwestern faculty, was Band Director at El Cajon Valley High and Crawford High School.

The first organizational meeting will be held in the Band Room at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, September 16. No previous admission requirements are necessary, nor will any grades be given for attendance or concerts.

Fall Run For Your Life classes, starting September 14, will become co-ed at several locations in San Diego County according to Roger Martin, Downtown YMCA Physical Director.

'Smiling' Ed Wins Main

Lemon Grove Pilot Comes From Far Back To Victory

Smilin' Ed Hale, of Lemon Grove, who has his car in the best running order of the year, walked off with the top prize Saturday night in the Labor Day Open Competition main event at Cajon Speedway.

Hale, who took over the point lead from Bonita's Russ Bullen two weeks ago, set the fast time, made off with the three-lap trophy dash, and came from 17th to claim the win in the main event, a fifty-lapper.

Cactus Henyan, of Jamul, a hard luck driver all season, jumped to the lead as the green flag came out to start the race, and built up a big margin before Richard White spun out on the 37th lap, closing the pack.

As the green came down, Pat McIntyre, a Spring Valley leadfoot, got around Henyan, and gunned his machine until Hale managed to get through the traffic and take the lead.

On Friday night, a flock of Spring Valley-Lemon Grove area drivers turned in fine performances, although the big wins came for El Cajon drivers.

Although Ed Hale set the fast qualifying time, Jim Wood, of Ramona took the nod in the trophy dash, with Dave Hall, El Cajon, Carl Adams, Lemon Grove, and Hale, behind.

In the semi-main event, Spring Valley pilot Stan Simons nailed down the win, while Spring Valley's Pat McIntyre and Hale took second and third in the main event.

Adams took sixth place in the main, and Roger Tilton finished eighth. Tilton, a Spring Valley resident, also runs a welding shop in Lemon Grove.

In figure eight action, it was all Dean Erwin, former Lemon Grove driver now from El Cajon, as he won the semi-main and main events.

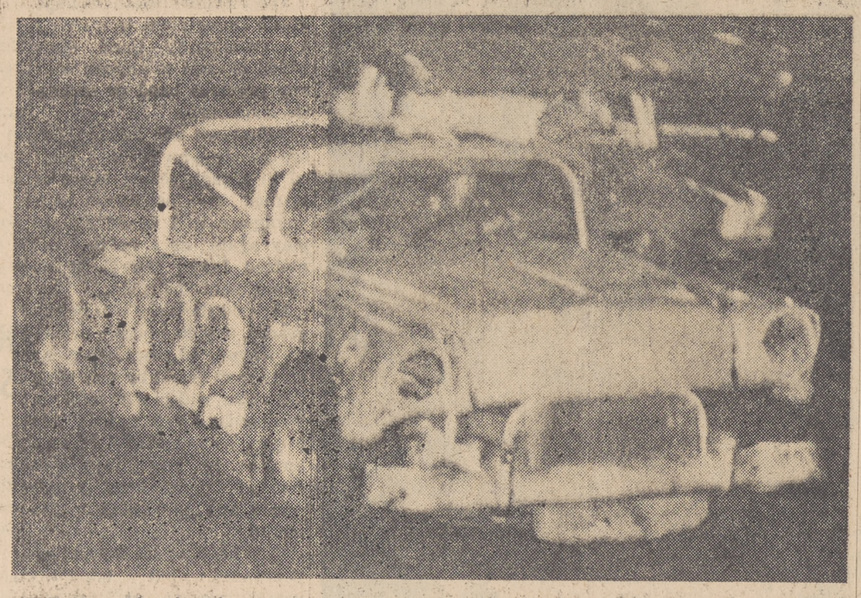
For Ed Hale, the figure eight races were disappointing, as he lost the lead in the semi-main and finished second, and got involved at the "X" with another car, and was forced out of the race in the main event.

Super stocks, limiteds, figure eights and modifieds will all be in action again this weekend, as the eights and modifieds run for the last time this season.

In modified competition, Hale will be battling Don Hamilton for third place in the final standings, and Mike Klein will join Hale and Erwin as the eights bash fenders.

On Saturday night, the super stocks will roar into action again, as Smilin' Ed tries to fight off a comeback effort by two-time points champion Bullen, and Pat McIntyre gives chase to John Dineen for third place honors.

Jim Hitt, Lemon Grove's sretch driver, will also be on hand to give chase to McIntyre and Dineen. Hitt, who drives he Marck Motors special, has been driving well the last few weeks, and won the main event two weeks ago.



WINNER — Ed Hale, of Lemon Grove, gives it the gas as he comes out of the north turn at the Cajon Speedway, enroute to his victory in the Labor Day Open Competition. Pat McIntyre, of Spring Valley, took second in the fifty lap affair.

Del Mar Near Close

DEL MAR — Championship of the West among two-year-olds will be on the line here Saturday in the 23rd running of the $100,000 plus Del Mar Futurity, the climax event of the seaside track's greatest season in history.

A field of ten or more are expected to answer the call postward, headed by Billrick Stable's sensational speedster, Kfar Tov, with Champion Bill Shoemaker in the saddle. It is also planned to have the final day of the 1970 season as "Shoemaker Day", an occasion for sports fans everywhere to pay tribute to the mighty little man of the saddle.

Jack Carter To Be 'Honored' Next Week in Golf Classic

Jack Carter, the comedian with a record of over 50 guest appearances on the Ed Sullivan Show, has been named Mulligan Award Winner of 1970 by officials of the Comedians Golf Classic who will so "honor" him at the tourney at Carlton Oaks CC in Santee, Calif. Sept. 18, 19.

A regular in this celebrity-laden tourney benefitting the Friends of Handicapped Children, Carter will join Pro Golfer of the Year Dave Hill in facing a panel of professional rib artists at the annual Mulligan Awards Banquet at the Town and Country Hotel on Saturday night, Sept. 19.

As a talented amateur golfer, Carter will also compete in the tournament along with other celebs and winners of Pro-Am tournaments throughout the country the past year.

Carter gained the Mulligan Award designation for an episode similar to the golf-oriented disasters that nominated such previous winners as Jack Lemmon, Don Rickles, Allan Sherman and Phil Foster. Playing at the Bel Air CC with Joey Bishop and Dick Martin, Carter overturned his cart and lay under it with a sprained ankle until discovered minutes later by his unsympathetic fellow players. Bishop said, "Stop clowning around and hit the ball." Then Martin, delivering a one-liner right out of Laugh-In as he drove by in a cart, reminded him, "You lie one."

Of Carter's nomination, Martin, who is the tourney chairman, said, "Every comedian in the business knows at last 20 good stories about Jack Carter and I'm sure we'll hear all those that are printable."

MULLIGAN AWARDS

Carter and Hill will be seated in throne-like chairs at the Mulligan Awards Dinner. Each of a panel of comedians will take his turn cautioning Carter about reckless cart driving or Hill about missing his first cut in years at the lucrative Dow Jones Open (or commenting on U. S. Open courses). Carter and Hill will eventually offer a rebuttal.

Among those likely to serve on the panel are Lemmon, Phil Harris, Don Knotts, Sid Casear, Don Adams, Chuck Connors, Buddy Lester, Jan Murray and Mr. and Mrs. Gary Morton (Lucille Ball). Among other celebs in the audience and competing in the two-day team tournament will be Sugar Ray Robinson, Lawrence Welk, Jose Ferrer, Richard Arlen, Monty Hall and Fred Finn.

Carter, a product of Brooklyn, is famed as an actor, comic singer, mimic, dancer, ministrel, pantomimist and emcee. In addition to starring in his own special, "The Funny World of Jack Carter," he has appeared on the Dean Martin, Andy Williams, Jackie Gleason and Bob Hope Shows. Gold Cup Race Set Next Week At Mission Bay

Fourteen of the finest unlimited hydroplane drivers in the United States will be in the San Diego area next week, as the 1970 Gold Cup race unfolds at Mission Bay, September 16-20.

The program at Mission Bay calls for qualifying runs Wednesday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., eight heat races, and numerous special programs on Sunday.

After the first three heats Sunday, the "Great Rock Race" will be run, featuring large rocks powered by powerful Chrysler outboard engines.

The "Great Rocks" are actually made of stone, but a very light stone from Mono County, Calif. The rocks were formed over 30,000 years ago by volcanic action, and weigh over 2000 pounds.

They will be seen at about 12:30 p.m. at the Mission Bay course, traveling at tremendous speeds of up to five miles per hour.

At 3 p.m., another special attraction will get underway, as Skip Volk puts on an Aerobatic Air Show.

The Gold Cup race itself will begin shortly after 5 p.m.

General admission for the races is $3 for adults, with kids under 12 free, and one dollar to park.

Deadline Nears For S.D. To Ensenada Race

The deadline for entering the annual San Diego-Ensenada yacht race is September 18, according to reports from the Southwestern Yacht Club.

Officials of the race have announced that this year's race will have more requirements than those of the past. New requirements include that all monohull yachts must have Nayru sail numbers on their sales, a valid CCA or SDHF measurement certificate, and must meet specific new safety rules before entry forms will be accepted.

The Southwestern Yacht Club will not provide measuring service this year.

However, entries will be allowed to have younger crewmen aboard their vessels, as the minimum age requirement has been lowered to 15. All persons under eighteen must be either sailing with their parents, or possess a notarized permission slip signed by a parent or guardian.

This is due to Mexican immigration laws.

Pat Dobson . . . "Ready every fourth day"

Dobson Follows Mind's Meditation Every Four Days In Padre Rotation

It is the unclouded belief of Pat Dobson that pride is a pitcher's most significant human resource.

Talent, to Dobson, is the servant of desire. If a man has pride in his work, he will own the desire to perform always to his greatest ability.

This calculation of the human spirit is banal only because it has been conceived by many. But only a few, and Dobson rates right up there, have embraced it to the degree that the body is obliged to follow the meditations of the mind.

"The word 'starting pitcher' means to me a man who is ready to pitch every fourth day," Dobson explained, "and give 100 percent of himself every time.

"Sure there have been times this year when I suppose I could have begged off taking my turn. I mean, I had the flu or my arm hurt or something like that. But I've got pride in being a starting pitcher. And I wouldn't let myself miss my obligation.

"The people who pay me expect me to pitch. They want to depend on me and I hope to earn their respect. I spent nearly eight years in the minors waiting for this chance. I'm not about to blow my opportunity."

There are those who measure a pitcher by the degree of pain he is able to handle without diminishing his effectiveness.

"There aren't many pitchers who don't pitch regularly with some pain," Dobson said. "Pain is part of the job. And I'm not about to complain. Pitching is what I get paid to do, no matter what the circumstances."

A man of strong, honest character, Pat Dobson by appearance belies his personality. His no-nonsence face, whose features appear to defy adveresity, explode readily at even a mildly droll tale or prank. Dobson often resembles a giant elf who has been frolicking in a coal bin.

Without rebuttal from him, Dobson is most comfortable when he is on a pitching mound.

"Some pitchers have to get themselves ready mentally before a game," he said. "I mean, they have to work up what amounts to a hatred for the batter. With me, that comes naturally. I have it as soon as I step out of the dugout."

It is essential, Dobson believes, that any pitcher who intends to win regularly has supreme confidence in his own skills.

"I believe that I'm a better pitcher than the other guys are hitters," he explained. "And on any given night I know I'm a better pitcher than anybody is a hitter."

The difference between a "given night" and "any night" is control.

"I remember what it took to get the batter out the last time," Dobson said, "and I try to put the ball in the same spot. It's a matter of control whether I do it or not, or how much I'm off.

"When I miss, it's a mistake. Hits are born out of a pitcher's mistakes. Good batters hit my mistakes. And even not so good batters hit my bad mistakes."

A man suggested that a pitcher's mistakes often might be cerebral, in that memory of past success could be faulty.

"It's possible, but not likely," Dobson said. "I will face a batter 10 times and on-the-spot I could tell you accurately 90 percent of all the pitches I made to him and 100 percent of the pitches I made that got him out."

In 1968 Dobson worked 125 innings for Detroit, a club record for relief hurlers. He is a starter now, confident that he has improved as a player.

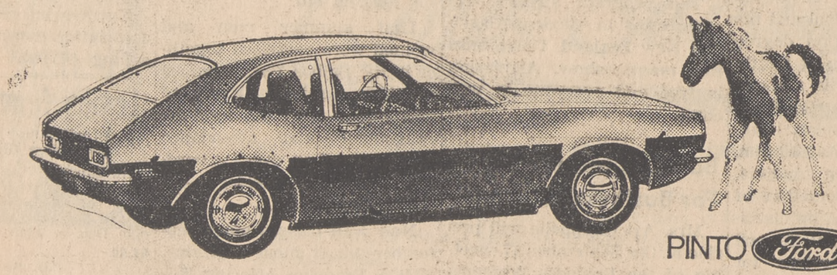
Record Group Set To Vie At La Jolla

Officials of the 1970 La Jolla Rough Water Swim and Aqua Fiesta on September 13 at La Jolla Cove, counting up entries to date, have predicted swimming fields bettering last year's record total of 527 for the adult and junior rough water races.

Many more participants are expected in Pacific Coast Paddleboard Championships, Surf Lifesaving Association paddleboard races and National Dorymen's Association dory races in a program starting at 9 a.m. and ending around 3:30 p.m.

Graham McLintock of National City, last year's men's race winner, will defed his title in the 39th Rough Water Swim in a series going back to 1916.

Meet Ford's new Pinto.
The little carefree car.



If you have the questions, Pinto has the answers.

Q. What do you mean, "carefree"?
A. Pinto's designed to free you from car cares, big and little. Cares about high prices and big gas bills. Cares about parking. Cares about service and reliability. Power and stability. Quiet and roominess.
Q. You say Pinto is little. How little?
A. Pinto is only 3 inches longer than VW. But its turning circle is actually a little less, so Pinto can slip easily into tight parking spaces.
Q. And inside?
A. Pinto gives you more interior roominess overall than Volkswagen. And getting in and out is easier because Pinto's doors are a good half-foot wider.
Q. What about price?
A. Pinto is priced like the little economy imports, too.
Q. What about power?
A. Pinto delivers 75 horsepower and averages over 25 miles per gallon in simulated city/suburban driving. The engine is front-mounted and exceptionally quiet for a car in this class. Pinto is the only American economy car equipped with a 4-speed, fully synchronized transmission at no extra cost.
Q. What else is standard equipment?
A. High Back bucket seats. Direct-Aire ventilation with upper-level fresh air outlets. Heater/defroster with 3-speed fan. Two-speed electric windshield wipers. Electric windshield washers. Your choice of 15 exterior colors. And more.
Q. How about optional extras?
A. Pinto offers a 100-hp engine and 3-speed automatic transmission. Front disc brakes. Even built-in air conditioning. Tinted glass. Vinyl roof. "Flipper" rear quarter windows. Fold-down rear seat. Bumper guards and side molding with vinyl inserts to protect the paint. More than most imports offer—at prices economy-car buyers can afford.
Q. Reliability?
A. Pinto's engine has already logged 50 million owner-driven miles. And the strength of some of Pinto's parts makes ordinary little economy cars look puny by comparison. Parts like the starter motor, ball joints, rear wheel bearings are heavy duty. Craftsmanship? Pinto is the only American car with hand-matched transmission gears.
Q. What's Pinto like out on the road?
A. Pinto has a wider stance than any economy import, for better stability in turns and gusty crosswinds. For more road feel, and more precise handling, Pinto has rack & pinion steering—like Porsche and Jaguar—something you won't find on any other American car.
Q. Tell me about service.
A. Pinto is so simple you can do much of the maintenance yourself, if you like. The Owner's Manual shows you how. And Pinto's free Do-It-Yourself Key helps you perform minor service functions.
Q. Suppose I don't service Pinto myself?
A. You still save when your Ford Dealer does it. For example, Pinto needs an oil change half as often as the leading import. And a chassis lube only one-sixth as often.
Q. Sounds great—where can I test-drive Pinto?
A. Your nearest Ford Dealer. And if you have any more questions, he can answer them.

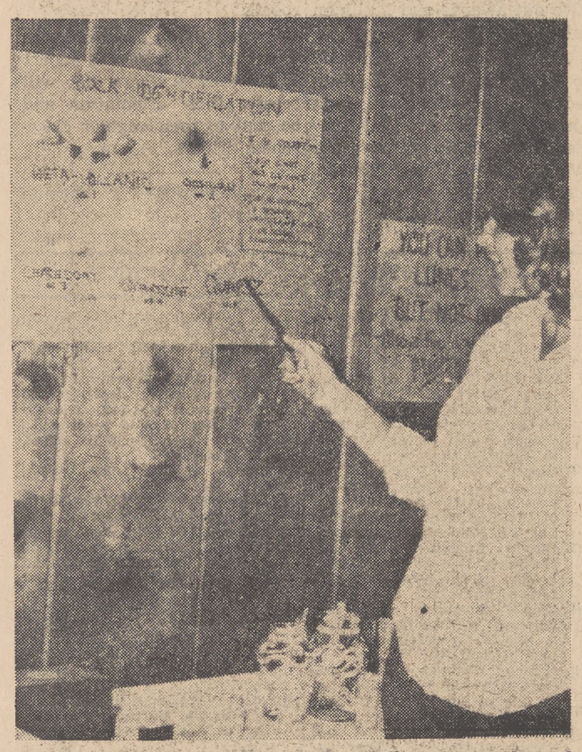
AMONG THE ARTIFACTS that have been found so far at the Bancroft Ranch House Archeological Investigations is this pair of scissors.



ROCK IDENTIFICATIONS — Kathy Phillips, a member of the staff of the investigations, shows how to tell one rock from another. This is important, so that the age of the rock can be determined.

STRAINING — This member of the Bancroft Ranch House Archeological Investigations is straining loose dirt through a screen, keeping a sharp eye for small artifacts. Items such as bones, beads, and glass are sought.

STRANGE STONE — Among the many artifacts that have been uncovered since the Bancroft Ranch House investigations have begun, is this oval stone. The archeologists think that it was an old tool, possibly for grinding.

Diggers Find Whiskey Bottles, Arrowheads, And Other Artifacts

Archeological Investigations Help Put Together History

by John Nicholson

A staff of six volunteers, led by Tim Gross and Kathy Phillips, is digging holes in the property around the Bancroft Ranch House in Spring Valley, and the Spring Valley Historical Society is helping them.

Actually, the group of "diggers" are archeologists, and they are uncovering a lot of interesting artifacts that help unveil parts of Spring Valley's history.

Gross, who started the project along with Kathy Phillips, in December of 1969, says that the oldest item they have come across during the Bancroft Ranch House Archeological Investigations in about 3,000 years old.

The archeologists make their finds by squaring off certain areas, then digging through the ground very carefully, with hand tools, looking for such pieces as arrowheads, old bottles, bits of bone, and primitive tools.

According to Gross, the most unusual thing that has been uncovered so far is an oval piece of smooth stone with a small hole drilled in one end. It is probably some type of ancient tool.

The Spring Valley Historical Society, sanctioning group for the investigations, and owner of the property, is paying the electrical bill at the laboratories, so the investigations can continue.

The society also pays the caretaker, who gives tours of the Ranch House and museum Wednesday through Sunday, from 1 to 4 p.m.

Some of the things that are most interesting that have been uncovered by the investigations include some spherical metal objects, thought to be cannonballs, possibly used in a Spanish-Indian battle at the site.

Other items include broken Indian pottery, sea shells, which probaby were imported to the area after it was settled, nails and screws, some of which date back 100 years, and flakes of stone, which could be wastes from primitive stone tools.

One of the biggest finds recently was a whiskey bottle, found in five pieces, but reconstructed with a little glue. A volunteer expert has dated the bottle between 1870 and 1885, judging from the design of the bottle.

Problems with money have limited the investigations somewhat, as the staff and five or six regular volunteers must come up with cash from their own pockets for such things as dating artifacts, buying tools, transportation, and other items.

The Historical Society has helped a lot, according to Gross, but they don't have the necessary funds to furnish everything needed for better progress.

San Diego State College brings a class out every semester to work once-a-week on the project, and the college helps out with finances somewhat.

Gross notes that since the project was started in December, over $10,000 in labor and expenses has been used, but since the work is all volunteer, the investigations have cost much less than the figure indicates.

The investigations also receive help from local high school classes during the summer, as archeology classes join in with the work.

Some of the members of the classes that have done work on the project have gotten interested enough to continue with the investigations after they have completed the classes.

This is the way, primarily, that the staff has grown from two people to over 10 workers, and up to 30 when a class from a school helps out.

Gross adds that the investigations could continue for two or three more years, depending on available funds, donations, grants, and volunteers.

DIGGING — Using a shovel to get to the bottom of things, this member of the investigations staff shovels loose dirt through a straining screen, so that small artifacts can be found.

TAKING A LOOK — Tim Gross, co-director of the investigations, points out what could be a valuable piece in leading to a portion of Spring Valley's history.

Fire Regulations Apply To Pleasure Boats Too

Plot a fire-safe course to keep the "pleasure" in pleasure boating!

This is the important reminder from the San Diego County Chapter, National Safety Council to captains, mates and crew members enjoying the nation's fastest-growing recreational activity. The Council offers these vital pointers to all week-end sailors:

1. Fueling operations should begin only after all open flames have been extinguished and a strict "No Smoking!" rule enforced. Keep fuel away from ignition sources. Immediately wipe up any fuel that spills or splashes.

2. Portable fuel tanks used with outboard motors should be removed from the boat for filling. Store extra fuel only in approved safety containers or portable tanks, and never keep reserve supplies in the engine or living compartments.

3. Before starting an inboard motor, ventilate the engine compartment and make sure there is no strong smell of gasoline.

4. Be a good "boatkeeper." Bilge should be free of oil and gasoline. Avoid accumulating rags — especially oily ones — or papers. Keep matches well out of the reach of children.

5. Stoves should be only those approved for marine use. When on board, never use a portable stove fueled by LP (liquefied petroleum) Gas or by gasoline.

6. Portable heaters are generally unsafe for use on a boat.

7. For fire protection purposes, carry the number and type of approved fire extinguishers required for your class boat. Keep extinguishers close at hand or just outside the compartments they are to protect. Be sure they are fully charged and in first-rate working condition at all times. "Don't leave fire safety precautions on the pier," says the Council. "Fire-safe boating habits are real life-savers."

If you are planning a long trip be sure to get the proper rest before starting out. Too little rest could cause you to become drowsy behind the wheel. Eternal rest could be the result.

Monagan Bill To Help More Students Attend Independent Colleges

Students wishing to attend United States International University and other independent California colleges and universities will find their opportunity to do so increased by the Monagan scholarship bill which Governor Reagan recently signed into law.

Governor Reagan has signed the bill authored by Speaker of the Assembly Robert Monagan and passed unanimously in both Houses of the Legislature, increasing the number of new State Scholarships by 50 percent.

According to the terms of the bill, the State Scholarship and Loan Commission will award State Scholarships to 3 percent of the high school graduates rather than 2 percent as currently authorized.

The Commission will award 9,300 new State Scholarships in the Spring of 1971 for use in the 1971-72 academic year, and the total number of State Scholarships will increase by 1974-75 to a total of 32,000 new and renewal scholarships, with an estimated value of $26,500,000.

A Simple Landscape Can Make Maintenance Easier

Your yard should be a source of pleasure to you and all the members of your family. If you come to think of it as more of a source of drudgery than of relaxation and good times, your yard is not serving the correct purpose.

To people with plenty of time on their hands, gardening can be one of the most rewarding activities in the world. And some good hard yard work also serves as necessary physical exercise for people who don't get it elsewhere.

But if you are interested in spending as little time as possible maintaining your yard, here are some suggestions that will give you welcome results.

When planning foundation plantings alongside your house, select trees and shrubs that won't require pruning. Too many people mistakenly buy small forest trees that will completely outgrow their intended uses.

Save yourself future work by buying plants that will be most suitable for your needs when they have reached maturity.

Use an effective ground cover around all plants to eliminate the need for weeding and to avoid having to get a lawnmower up against the trunks of trees. Mulches are the easiest and least expensive — especially wood chips and ground bark.

Crushed stone is an attractive material for this purpose, but be sure to put a layer of plastic sheeting on the ground first to prevent weeds from forcing their way through.

If you want more plant material in the area, use one of several varieties of crawling ivy. You will have to nuture the young plants for a while to get them going, but once they begin to thrive, you can forget about them.

Outline all planting beds — whether individual trees or an ntire row of hedges — with something that will provide a definite demarcation between lawn and planting areas. Bricks, sunk to the level of the soil, are most effective. Strips of wood or narrow trenches are also good.

The simpler your overall landscaping plan, the easier it will be to maintain. Install trees, shrubs, and flower beds in cohesive units, to minimize the amount of careful mowing that must be done. Keep the lawn areas free of bird baths, ponds, and other obstructions.

Your local member of The American Association of Nurserymen will be glad to recommend varieties of trees and shrubs that require the least attention. The ginkgo tree, for instance, drops its leaves rapidly in the autumn, making raking a one-time chore. The limited growth of the crabapple, the Japanese maple, and the dogwood makes them ideal for small areas, with no pruning to worry about.

To reduce your flower growing chores, concentrate on informal gardens of wild flowers and herbs, which need only sunlight and occasional watering to thrive.

Reduce your yard maintenance even more by installing a large patio. The innumerable designs that can be made with concrete, brick, stone, gravel, and other materials offer attractive possibilities for any lawn.

Robbers Get Six Dollars

Two Negro men, one with a handgun, held up the Speedee Mart at 10049 Campo rd., Spring Valley, shortly after closing hours last Thursday, and made off with six dollars in cash.

The robbers showed up ten minutes after the 11 p.m. closing time for the store, and all the money was locked in the safe, so they accepted the six dollars and fled.

County Returns Land After 42 Years Use

SAN DIEGO (CNA) — County supervisors on Tuesday returned land in the "eye" of a Casa de Oro freeway intersection to Fred Hansen.

Hansen had given the land to the county for road purposes in 1928 and it was used for Sweetwater Springs blvd. until that road was relocated by the freeway construction for Freeway 94.

The action was taken in one of the many three to two votes of the board with Supervisors Harry Scheidle and Jack Walsh in opposition. They said the county should at least investigate what benefit Hansen had received from the construction of the boulevard.

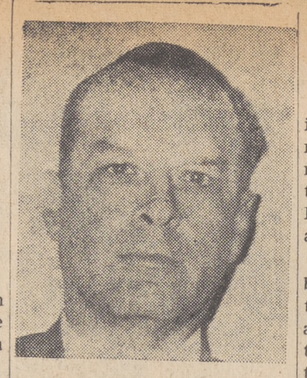
Assistant Planning Director Jack Lamb said the Casa de Oro Businessmen's Assn. has indicated an interest in landscaping the site and erecting a logo to identify the Casa de Oro community.

There is little doub the property will be used as a service station. Hansen's attorney, Leo Henrickson, did not deny this although he said there are no present plan or agreements for development of the property.

The zone is C-1, a commercial zone that allows outdoor advertising billboard.

Engineer Howard Taylor said that a service station on the property would cause traffic congestion because the primary entering pattern would be across several traffic lanes.

The county's right to the property, however, consisted only of a road easement and did not include fee title to the land.



INSPECTOR— Sheriff's Deputy Captain Quentin D. Cash has been promoted to the rank of inspector, it was announced by S.D. County Sheriff Joe O'Connor. The promotion, effective Sept. 4, followed a rigorous test. At the same time Undersheriff Lt. Fred J. Lee passed the examination. He will remain in the undershriff's post, O'Connor said.

Cash has been in charge of the Sheriff's East County substation with its complement of 114 for the past three years. He will now supervise both the East and North County sub-stations. The North County headquarters has a complement of 85. Cash will operate from the San Diego main office.

The captain's post made vacant by Cash's promotion will be filled "probably during the month," he said. Cash is a member of the Lemon Grove Rotary Club.

Reds Here For Weekend Series

The Big Red Machine, roaring toward an autumn argument in the World Series but roughed up here all season by the Padres, makes a final San Diego visit starting Friday for a three-game weekend series.

The best the high-flying but bruising Reds have been able to accomplish in San Diego is a split of six games. In fact, through their first dozen contests, the Reds and the Padres were even at six wins apiece.

"We seem to play our best baseball against the top teams," explained third baseman Ed Spiezio. "If I knew why we have beaten the Reds so often as compared to other teams I'd be some kind of genius."

Friday night all fans will receive a color team picture of the entire San Diego squad and at the same time the Padres will be playing picture baseball against the Reds.

The 11 by 14 inch picture is perfect for framing or posting. And everybody in attendance for the 7:30 p.m. series opener will receive one.

And its Double Dip Day Saturday with the Padres and Sea World joining hands to provide a treat for the entire family. At a special discount price, $2.50 for children (15 and under) and $5 for adults, persons receive all-day admission to Sea World as well as a box seat $3.50) to the Padre-Cincinnati game that night.

Tickets for Double Dip Day must be purchased at San Diego Stadium only.

Nation's Top Comics Head For Carlton Oaks

Prizes available to competitors in the Ninth Annual Comedians Golf Classic on Sept. 18, 19 at Carlton Oaks CC in nearby Santee, will include a new car for a hole-in-one on the 160-yard 11th hole, tournament director Dick Martin has announced.

Local Datsun dealers will contribute their latest model to anyone aceing the 11th. If nobody does, the car will be sold at the tournament's Auction Bash benefitting the Friends of Handicapped Children," Martin said.

Gifts and favors to participants will be made by other co-sponsors.

Representatives of 20 of the country's leading Pro-Am tournaments will compete without distraction for the low individual gross, net and team (best two balls) scores on Friday. On Saturday, "Mulligan Holes" will offer what are euphemistically described as "tests of golfing skill" and promise to provide the gallery with laughs. Sponsors will give out awards and Mulligan prizes during play.

Among celebrities expected to take part are Martin, Don Adams, Jack Lemmon, Jack Carter, Sid Caesar, Phil Harris, Chuck Connors, Lawrence Welk, Sugar Ray Robinson, Monty Hall, Jan Murray, Jose Ferrer and Mr. and Mrs. Gary Morton (Lucille Ball).

Tickets for the tournament, proceeds from which will go toward the therapeutic swimming pool and playground for Friends of Handicapped Children, are on sale at Fashion Valley Center Office, Town and Country Hotel, University Club, golf shops or by mail to P.O. Box 1892, La Jolla.

La Presa Jr. High Plans Regular Day

Roy Williams, principal of La Presa Junior High, announced that there would be no special day set aside for students' orientation. Instead, students will arrive at school on the morning of September 14.

Eight-grade students are expected to arrive at 8 a.m. in the school's library. They will be dismissed prior to 9 a.m. to return to their regular classrooms.

Seventh-grade students are to arrive at 9 a.m. and report to the library where they will receive their orientation and be sent to their regular classrooms prior to 10 a.m.

A family in Vista had an electric problem recently and requested our help.

Our serviceman tracked down the trouble after a lengthy search...and a few detours around the kids.

We got a nice letter of thanks for "the men who were so patient, kind and did their job well under many interruptions from a large family."

San Diego County Honor Camps Save Tax Money

The normal 500 population of the ten County of San Diego Honor Camps includes 75 marked inmates. Marked by the scars of narcotics addiction, these inmates if free could be stealing up to $37,500 a day to support their addiction.

That is the estimate of Dr. Arnold Mandell, UCSD medical staff member, who notes that an addict must steal an average $500 a day in valuables to support a common $100 a day "habit."

By contrast, the daily cost to maintain one inmate in an Honor Camp is $9. However, there is good news for taxpayers in that inmate work projects have an average value of over $7 a day, bringing net cost per inmate down to $1.66, according to James C. Reed, Jr., Director of Honor Camps.

Work projects include clearing brush, fighting forest fires, and cleaning up litter on County highways. Inmates grow and plant more than 20,000 trees a year.

They repair County furniture, build roads and trails, and construct emergency Civil Defense field hospitals. They also repair toys and bikes for the annual "Toys for Tots" Christmas project.

These work projects are part of a modern correctional program stressing rehabilitation through work, an approach which has brought favorable mention of the San Diego County program by the President's Commission on Crime.

Honor Camp inmates are a select group. The Sheriff's Classification Committee interviews, tests, and picks candidates from the County Jail. They spend three weeks at a Classification Center before being assigned to a camp for education, training, and work.

Only the Classification Center has a fence around it. The six other rural camps are open and unfenced. In three facilities, the honor system goes further. Crofton House, Work Furlough Center, and the Women's Correction Center are near downtown San Diego. Inmates leave daily to hold regular jobs in the community. At night the inmates return for special counseling sessions — and remain overnight.

While in these "halfway house" centers, the inmates must pay room and board to the County, support their families, and clear up outstanding debts as first steps back to responsible citizenship.

Besides rehabilitating selected County Jail inmates, Honor Camps provide another function. They provide a healthful locale for treatment of narcotics addicts and alcoholics, many of whom volunteer for the treatment.

Women Voters Eye Welfare

The League of Women Voters of Grossmont-Cajon Valley will hold its annual "kick-off" luncheon Saturday, at Love's Woodpit Barbeque, Fletcher Parkway. The luncheon will be preceded by a discussion with a panel of four experts on the subject of "The Welfare System and Further Measures to Combat Poverty", starting at 10:30 a.m.

This luncheon is open to all interested women and their friends in the area, whether members of the League of Women Voters, or not. All phases of the subject will be discussed, and everyone is urged to attend.

VG PTA Council To Meet Wednesday

The Valley Grove Council of Paren Teacher Association of Parent Teacher Associations will hold a workshop for all unit officers and chairmen on Wednesday, September 16 at the Skyline Wesleyan Church, 1345 Skyline dr., Lemon Grove.

Registration and coffee from 9 - 9:30 a.m. will be followed by a brief business meeting conducted by Mrs. Arville Smith, president. The members will then disperse to various rooms to discuss ideas and techniques pertaining to each office and chairmanship.

Baby sitting will be provided.

Criminal Justice Is Credit Course

"Problems in Corrections" will be the topic at the fifth in a series of conferences dealing with criminal justice. The meetings, to be held on consecutive Saturdays starting September 19, will be held at 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Bronze Room in La Mesa.

Speakers will cover both military and civil criminal justice and corrections.

The first week will have to do with military justice and military officers will present the program. A judge, an attorney, a district attorney, and a sheriff's captain will handle the civil criminal aspects the second Seminary.

Easter Seals Campaigns Net Record

San Diego County residents have contributed $127,000 to the 1970 Easter Seal Campaign, Miss Edwina Sample said.

Miss Sample, chairman of this year's campaign which had a theme of Faith, Hope and Therapy, said that this is the final figure with Aug. 31 marking the official closing of the campaign year.

This amount is the largest ever raised in the history of the San Diego County Easter Seal Campaign, Miss Sample said.

The campaign was sponsored by the Easter Seal Division of Children's Health Center, 8001 Frost st., San Diego.

"We had a fine response to this year's appeal," Miss Sample said. "The funds will help many handicapped youngsters to a more active and useful life."

BoA Burglar Fails

FBI men and the sheriff's department are running down clues following an attempt to burglarize the Lemon Grove branch of the Bank of America during the Labor Day week-end.

One or more persons broke into a conference room, climbed through the ceiling to the vault area. The attempt on the vault was futile.

Loss was restricted to damage done to the building and to the wires to cameras in the bank.

No money was taken.

The Resolution cited Judge Hussey's conrtribution to the cause of justice and to his service to the people. He lives at 7205 San Miguel st. in Lemon Grove. About 150 persons were present, including many Kiwanis club members from Lemon Grove.

Broiled Ground Beef

All four kinds of ground beef can be pan broiled. Be sure not to overcook or handle too much when making patties, as they become tough says the California Beef Council home economists. The four kinds of ground beef are ground sirloin, ground round, ground chuck and regular ground beef.

Adults Head Back To School

Adult School may be obtained in Post Office or libraries in the Grossmont High School District. Specific information regarding classes may be obtained by calling Grossmont Adult School, 465-3131 Ext. 275.

The Nursing Education department of the Grossmont Adult School offers training Vocational Nursing and Nurse Aide course. Pharmacology for Nurses, starting Tuesday evening September 15 at 7 p.m. and open only to LVN's, is designed to reinforce fundamentals of Pharmacology in Nursing with emphasis on medication problems and drug therapy.

Exercise Can Aid Those With Impaired Breathing

Exercise can perk up most people. It can even help some patients with chronic lung disease.

One of the distressing symptoms of chronic obstructive lung disease is labored breathing. Any activity accelerates the struggle to breathe. Walking at an even pace can require enormous exertion. To avoid exertion, the person tends to do less and les. But the resultant inactivity creates a vicious cycle. The less the person does, the more effort is required to do anything at all.

A recent program for patients with severely labored breathing featured a rather drastic activity: riding a stationary bicycle every day for 18 weeks. All the patients, exsmokers, had smoked at least a package a day for 20 years — a factor which contributed to or actually caused their condition.

Each patient kept a daily diary to record time pedaled, miles achieved, and comments — chiefly about daily life activities. As exercise continued, the number of activities increased.

Although the exercise did not improve lung function in every patient, all of them said they felt better from the activity. The director of the program at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in Boston, Dr. Harry Bass, said, "We believe that we are improving the patients and keeping them alive longer by improving their fitness and ability to withstand the stress of intercurrent disease."

Patients with lung or heart disease, of course, should consult their doctor before undertaking this kind of exercise.

To find out more about the lungs and how they function, check with your Tuberculosis and Health Association of San Diego and Imperial Counties. It's a matter of life and breath.

tion of San Diego county has grown 18%; the Union's daily circulation has grown 27%.

You say that "putting his signature to the UNION'S front page editorial backing Goldwater in 1964 was an exception to Mr. Copley's lack of control of his papers. Mr. Copley, publisher of the UNION and editor of its editorial page, directs its editorial operation, writes editorials, sometimes signs them, as he did as recently as October 15 of this year. (1969)

You say the UNION has "140 reporters who excel in military and space coverage." The UNION has a total of 79 reporters, including sports, financial and women. Just one is assigned to the subjects of military and aerospace.

You say the "staff turnover at the UNION is unusually high." Over the past three years there has been a total of 13 reporter separations.

You say that Lyn Nofziger, White House legislative aide, is a "Union alumnus." He is not. He was employed by the corporate headquarters.

You say the same of Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense, Richard Capen. He is not. He worked in the corporate office.

My conclusion: the quality of research exhibited above does not meet the standards of the SAN DIEGO UNION.

NEWSWEEK did not see fit either to publish or acknowledge publicly our comments.

Another inaccuracy in your report lies in what you describe as an "inexcusable failure" to report in adequate length, perspective, and depth all the legitimate news regarding our police department problems, and the income tax problems related to the Alessio family.

Your charge is self-destructive. You say yourself that many of the allegations regarding the police were unsubstantiated.

Thus, what you apparently condemn is the fact that we did not indulge in speculation or sensationalism.

The fact is, where the police case is concerned, we reported the matter fully, fairly, and continually. We confined our editorializing to the editorial pages, where our view reflected the attitude of every concerned citizen. We summarized our position in these words:

What is needed now is for the Chief of Police, the City Manager, or both, to request the conduct of a full, formal and open investigation of the matter. Until this is done, there will remain grave apprehension throughout the community.

In what respect do you differ from this position?

With regard to the Alessio case, the same is true. We reported the news continuously and thoroughly, publicizing all of the legitimate information on the subject, to the tune of 340 column inches. There was no aspect of suppression. As the case approached its climax, you will find the facts were presented under a 4-column headline on Page 1 of The San Diego Union. Again, you simply haven't done your homework.

Capricious in the extreme is your inference that our newspapers are in any way involved in violence done the San Diego Street Journal. This is the sort of irresponsible writing that brings news media deservedly into disrepute.

You try to draw TIME MAGAZINE into an alliance with you in this imputation, but here is what TIME has to say about the matter in a letter to our publisher signed by Daniel Seligmen, TIME's senior staff editor:

We didn't mean to imply that there was a casual relationship between the violence reported in San Diego and the conservative posture of several local institutions; the background was not intended to implicate any of these institutions in the violence."

You perpetuate your generalized innuendo in saying that our "Letters to the Editor" all seem to be pulled from same simplistic mold."

Simplistic can have numerous meanings, but it cannot imply that we decline to print letters which are contrary to our own editorial policy. If you read them daily, you will see that your indictment is irresponsible — wide of the mark.

On one point your article is precisely correct. You take cynical pleasure in the fact that Marxist Herbert Marcuse remains at UCSD, portraying the fact as being a humiliation to us,

You are absolutely right. Along with many other conscientious Americans, the UNION and TRIBUNE are saddened to see one of the darlings of the radical left, an open-protagonist of violent and licentious behavior, still on the public payroll. We have tried conscientiously to make known the facts where Marcuse is concerned, and we regret that we have not been more effective.

And now, permit me to conclude with what has to be a classic example of hypocritical bias, where your piece reaches its peak not in what it says, but in what it does not say.

The two newspapers are, by your biased measure, wicked, retrospective, not abreast of the times, and withal, bad for San Diego.

In keeping with this condemnation you make no slight acknowledgment that they are in the forefront of every decent, progressive and civicly beneficial endeavor which takes place in San Diego.

Ecology, open spaces, concerned for the sick and destitute, support of the United Community Services, support of every school bond issue, of programs for young people, sports, cultural opportunities for everyone; support of the Zoo, Mission Bay Park, the creation of the Port District, downtown rehabilitation, the creation of the UCSD campus, the Community Concourse, the Fine Arts Gallery, urban renewal, the Convention and Visitors Bureau, industrial zoning, freeway development. Our pages are dedicated generously to these and many more civic activities which San Diego something better than the "unfortunate national image" with which you indict a fine community.

Your distorted piece has done the UNION and the TRIBUNE a disservice. It has done San Diego a disservice too, and I ask that you print this letter in its entirety as a small gesture aimed at redressing a capricious act.

Milford Chipp
News Director
Union-Tribune Publishing Company

Why should MAGAZINE SAN DIEGO do such a piece in the first place if it is so erroneous?

Robert Letts Jones, president of Copley Newspapers, once said at a symposium of practicing newspapermen at the University of North Carolina that some writers take pot shots at his newspapers about every week.

One reason, he said, is the indirect antagonism toward the Nixon Administration. Herb Klein, communications chief for President Nixon, got most of his editorial experience as editor of the S.D. Union. He is one of 10 from the Copley organization serving in various positions in Washington.

Then some critics attack the publication for being such staunch believers in the American flag and the American system stressing individual dignity, initiative and free enterprise. The publication prints the American flag in color on the 4th of July and Flag Day.

The newspaper prints stories of military heroism because it feels that the finest qualities of individual character are revealed under conditions of stress in defense of country and its principles. Said Jones: "If that makes us flag-wavers and superpatriots, this is the label we are proud to wear."
